We'll get you a memo today, but in case someone asks you before I can get it to you, several points: 1) the Lt. Gov who ran against Babauta in the primary ran a horrible campaign; 2) the party labels on the island do not always translate out here (remember Democrat Governor Froilan Tenorio's "I am a national Republican, but a local Democrat"); 3) the Republican party has been terribly split by the presence of these "Republicrats"; 4) the cross over votes from the D's were overwhelmingly pro-Babuata in the primary (probably knowing that if he were nominated, Ben would run); the Lt. Gov losing the primary forced Ben (former Republican party chairman, chair of Bush-Cheney in the CNMI, Republican Speaker) to form a third party which owes its allegiance to the national Republican party as well. Anyway, more soon. Thanks.

"MINETA PLEDGES SUPPORT TO THE NMI"

Babauta, Senate President Paul Manglona, and two local CPA officials met with Mineta early this week to discuss transportation and ports developments issues for the CNMI. I think they are following up on the Rota and Tinian port projects which you managed to get our friends in Congress to appropriate $150,000 each for initial feasibility studies to be conducted by the Army Corps of Engineers. I think Babauta is now trying to follow-up on the construction funding.

I think we should set the record straight to let the people of the CNMI know how these two projects came into being. Last weekend the Mayor of Rota announced in Rota that he is responsible for getting federal appropriations for the Rota airport resurfacing project. People are being misinformed and I think we need to set the record straight before they start to believe in these comedians.

Politics on the CNMI

The political scene on the islands of the CNMI is dictated not by national party labels and politics, but by regional and local politics.

For instance, the political agenda of the former Democrat governor Froilan Tenorio (famous for his public proclamation "I am a national Republican, but a local Democrat") included efforts to privatize government services, protect right to work laws, fight the minimum wage, institute a school choice program and cut taxes. The opposition to his efforts was led by current "Republican Party" gubernatorial candidate Juan Babauta who aligns himself with national Democrats, such as [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] and [REDACTED], to whom he has also made campaign contributions.

Politics on the CNMI is dominated by those who live on the island of Saipan. Citizens who live on the islands of Rota and Tinian are often excluded from the political scene. That fact plays a bigger role in party selection than ideology.

Juan Babauta received the nomination for governor because his opponent in the primary - the sitting Republican Lieutenant Governor - ran a poor campaign. Additionally, because of the cross over voting system, exit polls showed that Babauta's primary victory came at the hands of Democrats, who realized that if Babauta were nominated, the Republicans would split, since many recognize Babuata for what he is: a liberal Democrat. Once Babauta was nominated, former Bush-Cheney chairman, current and past Republican Speaker of the CNMI House of Representatives and former Republican Party Chairman Ben Fitia, knowing that a Babauta governorship would deliver to [REDACTED] and the other Democratic opponents of the CNMI a victory in the fight over federalization of the CNMI economy, decided to form a third party (the Covenant Party - aligned with the national Republican Party ideologically and politically) and run for governor.

Notwithstanding the fact that Fitia is running as the Covenant Party nominee, many Republican Members of the US House of Representatives (including [REDACTED] others) have endorsed his candidacy and hope he wins. Babauta, as may be recalled from the earlier memo, has lashed out at the former Democrat Governor Tenorio for plighting the trough of the CNMI with the national Republican Party, once again proving his allegiance.

The NSC is very suspect of this proposal, particularly since Iraq does not owe anything near $100 billion to China. The White House will not support it. They cannot imagine any representative of the Iraqi GC being authorized to approve such a deal, so I would be suspicious of any contract they say is pending. The CPA will not agree to it either.

Hi Susan,

As a follow up to the email I sent you last month on this, the American Bondholders Foundation (ABF) is in the process of signing a ten year deal with representatives of the Iraqi Governing Council. It should be done in the next few days. The deal would exchange $100 billion in Chinese Government bearer bonds for $2 billion in Iraqi oil each year for ten years. The Iraqis would use the bonds to set-off a $100 billion in debt that Iraq owes to the PRC.

The ABF is holding open until mid-night on December 15, 2003, the same deal to the US Government. If the White House does this ten year deal by mid night on December 15, 2003, the USG would receive approximately $6 billion. However, if the White House fails to enter into the agreement by mid night on December 15, 2003, the US Government would lose the opportunity to secure any funds from the sale of ABF's Chinese bonds to Iraq.

Needless to say, having these extra funds available would be a huge help to the Administration, but the WH would have to make a decision on this immediately. We heard that James Baker is now in charge of Iraqi debt. Not sure if that is accurate, but if so, I hope the transition would not impede the possibility that the USG would get these funds. I have the ten year contracts and can forward them to you if needed. Please let me know if this is doable.

Thanks,

Jack

Just wanted to let everyone know of a disturbing problem I just learned about at the White House. The Intergovernmental Affairs Office just received their ethics briefing, and when all was said and done, they concluded that they should NEVER call lobbyists anymore -- will call tribes directly -- and will NEVER have lobbyists sit in meetings, EVEN WHEN the client is meeting with the IGA office. Obviously, this is ridiculous. (P.S. The new guy doing tribes over in that office, Jim Kelly, arranged a meeting with Gov. Paisano of Sandia without telling me, but fortunately I was given a heads-up by someone else over there).

I am going to have lunch with Susan Raiston this week and explain the problem to her. I don't want to get anyone inside in trouble so I would rather not say where I heard this info. But Susan should be able to find out about it and let the Political Affairs folks know that the President's supporters in DC should not be locked out of the White House or cut out of the loop when the WH deals with OUR clients.

Finally, it is scary that the White House ethics advisor -- a Nanette Everson -- told the IGA folks that tribes shouldn't even need to have lobbyists, anyway -- and that it was wrong for them to pay so much money for lobbyists when people in the government should be meeting with them as needed. Those are fighting words!!!!

As I said, I will raise it with Susan. If anyone else has a good idea, let me know. But please do not forward this email or say that we heard from within IGA about the briefing, etc. Thanks.

Dear Susan:

Per our discussion I want to recommend Arnold H. Leibowitz, Esquire, for the position of Lead Negotiator for the Micronesian Compacts which will establish our future relations with the Republic of the Marshall Islands and the Federated States of Micronesia (FSM).

Arnold has been active with respect to territorial matters since 1964 when he was General Counsel of the Status Commission on Puerto Rico. His book, Defining Status: A Comprehensive Analysis of United States Territorial Relations (Martinus Nijhoff 1989), is the leading reference book in the field and has been cited by the United States Supreme Court.

Arnold has been an active negotiator for the territories and Commonwealths of the U.S. over the last 30 years and, therefore, has credibility in the islands and has knowledge of the issues. He has been brought in by the Department of the Interior as a Consultant with respect to the Compact negotiations and, therefore, is familiar with the issues from the U.S. point of view. In short, the learning curve will be very brief.

Some other elements of his background that is important to note. In addition to his former position as General Counsel to the Status Commission on Puerto Rico, he was one of the consultants hired by the Association of Pacific Island Legislatures to establish the Pacific Islands Development Bank. In this latter connection, he traveled throughout Micronesia with Tosiwo Nakayama, the former President of the FSM, visiting the heads of states of all the islands and Micronesia (Palau, FSM, Guam, Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands and the Republic of the Marshall Islands). He was Counsel to the Guam and Virgin Islands Constitutional Conventions. He is a Yale Law School graduate, selected for the Yale Law Journal, and a Phi Beta Kappa from Columbia. Currently, he is an attorney in private practice specializing in refugee and immigration law, including legislative and high-level Executive Branch representation and appellate litigation.

In addition to Arnold's territorial background, he has served as Special Counsel on the U.S. Senate Subcommittee on Immigration and Refugee Law where he was the primary draftsman of what became the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986. He was appointed to the Special Counsel position by Alan Simpson. He worked for Senator Simpson for three years, from 1981-84, even though he was a Democrat and continued to be registered as such.

Similarly, Arnold was a non-career Democratic holdover who helped Secretary Maurice Stans establish the Office of Minority Business Enterprise. Former HUD Secretary James Lynn and FTC Commissioner Calvin Colhane know his record in that connection.

As you know, the Lead Negotiator position is presently occupied by Al Stayman, who was appointed in the Clinton Administration. After Stayman's appointment, it came out that during his tenure as Director of the Office of International Affairs, he and a member of the staff were utilizing the office to assist Democratic Congressmen to unseat Republicans. I think Arnold would bring a much more professional role to the office.

I have worked with Arnold a number of years now in connection with the applicability of various federal laws to the Northern Marianas and have come to respect his legal knowledge in the field, his wit, and good judgment. I think you will too.

Sincerely,

Alison Jones, called me from the White House today, and said that they went with someone internally for the vacant job. She did convey that she liked me a lot (C'mon, who wouldn't) and it was a really hard decision for. She told me if something else opens up she would keep me in mind and that if/when I leave the Senate, give her a call she'd be more than happy to provide a solid reference.
BTW- she thanked me for my nice thank you note --- people do notice!!

But, a big thanks to you peeps for all of your support/advice and whatnot!

Subject: Problem at White House

Just wanted to let everyone know of a disturbing problem I just learned about at the White House. The Intergovernmental Affairs Office just received their ethics briefing, and when all was said and done, they concluded that they should NEVER call lobbyists anymore -- will call tribes directly -- and will NEVER have lobbyists sit in meetings, EVEN WHEN the client is meeting with the IGA office. Obviously, this is ridiculous. (P.S. The new guy doing tribes over in that office, Jim Kelly, arranged a meeting with Gov. Paisano of Sandia without telling me, but fortunately I was given a heads-up by someone else over there).

I am going to have lunch with Susan Ralston this week and explain the problem to her. I don't want to get anyone inside in trouble so I would rather not say where I heard this info. But Susan should be able to find out about it and let the Political Affairs folks know that the President's supporters in DC should not be locked out of the White House or cut out of the loop when the WH deals with OUR clients.

Finally, it is scary that the White House ethics advisor -- a Nanette Everson -- told the IGA folks that tribes shouldn't even need to have lobbyists, anyway -- and that it was wrong for them to pay so much money for lobbyists when people in the government should be meeting with them as needed. Those are fighting words!!!!

As I said, I will raise it with Susan. If anyone else has a good idea, let me know. But please do not forward this email or say that we heard from within IGA about the briefing, etc. Thanks.

My last LDA search only show Wallace Henderson who works for an Austin based shop called Capital Strategies or something of that nature. [REDACTED] and Patton Boggs have worked for Jena or their financial backer HK Stanley. He paid for the latter with money from his company, Machal. I'll search the LDAs again to be sure. Bob and I were looking for any other name that might be paying on their behalf.

One of three things (or a combination): (1) they have been lobbied by Jena's side; I think Jennifer worked for [REDACTED] in the past; (2) they have been lobbied by both sides; remember that Susan haphazardly forwarded an email you sent her to others in the WH. As a result, they might genuinely want to stay out; and (3) After DOI left that burning bag of manure on their door step last week over the trust issue, they might want to stay away from this thankless decision.

GTG-R004069

But this all applies to Intergovt'l. Not sure this should prevent Rove's shop from being concerned. Which is why I thought -- and Neil agreed -- that he should touch base with Barry Jackson.

I talked to Sheila at RSC about this. She mentioned Sandy McDade (sp?) in Louisiana who is head of Eagle Forum there. I remember Sandy's name as she was Buchanan's LA state director in 1992. She is hardcore. Sheila said she would forward on a note from me to Sandy, but also said that [REDACTED]'s folks are probably tight with her. Steph/TAB, want to check that with [REDACTED]'s peeps? I will still have Sheila send a note. If Sandy got engaged, I am fairly certain we could get her to Dobson and then -- hopefully -- to [REDACTED]

Neil, is this something you could run by Barry Jackson? Jennifer Farley told me her shop was staying out of this.

I will talk with [REDACTED] and see if the Hill will bite on the story. Bresnahan is not the right person for this story - he won't write the story we want, limited to the subject area we want at least. I would definitely suggest staying away from him on this.

I know I'm fixated on the politics here, but with key house, senate and presidential races at least potentially around the corner, aren't there political forces at work here we can harness to convince Rove, RNC, etc this is bad. Or, do [REDACTED] shops still, if my notes from the meeting are right, have this thing wrapped at the White House?

People who are trying to be friendly to tribes on our side are going to turn into Arnold clones attacking tribes once this precedent is set.

Any chance to get Dobson or someone to get [REDACTED] fired up on the other side of that issue - or play a Texas angle here somehow....ugh, just thinking out loud.

Vitter is ready to get this done. I am drafting a letter from [REDACTED] to Leadership detailing what has happened, thanking them for their leadership and involvement on this and asking them for rider language. [REDACTED] wants it limited so I think we are going with a 90 day restriction. This should get us to February if they will allow it. [REDACTED] is also going to talk to the RSC. If we can get someone to bite on the [REDACTED] angle, wouldn't that help neutralize [REDACTED]? I'm working to get some dirt on the Wallace dynamic. I have someone wanting to be helpful that knows him really well.

[REDACTED] and [REDACTED] need to go to [REDACTED]. But you can guess his good friend [REDACTED] will do the same and he is much closer to [REDACTED] than the others.

Yes, and I started yesterday. RSC wants to hear from [REDACTED] since he is a good member of the group. But RSC doesn't have a lot of juice with Norton. If Rossetti supports and no one fights him internally, it will happen. Rossetti has Norton's ear on this stuff. Sounds like we need to start thinking rider.

As for [REDACTED], Interior already did this to him in his district. He felt betrayed by Griles et al on it. I doubt he will carry much weight.

I spoke with Chris Cox but have not been able to track down LaPierre.

Cox says they met with Bregman and Hoover and feel that Bregman is better on the gun issue but their main goal is to get rid of acting director Buckles.

NRA is not endorsing a nominee but they did tell the WH they prefer Bregman. If the media knows NRA has a preferred candidate, they will accuse the WH of cowering to the NRA..... which will make it more difficult for the WH to nominate that candidate.

Cox also told me that some people in the WH like Hoover because he was very active on their behalf during the Florida recount. The WH seems to give preference to folks who fought for them in FL.

Lastly, and do not pass this along to Bregman, the WH told Cox that neither Hoover or Bregman were impressive in their interview.

Cox is going to check around a bit more and get back to me tomorrow. I will talk to LaPierre.

City extends its right to exercise eminent domain

By Darrell Smith
The Desert Sun
February 6th, 2003

PALM SPRINGS -- The Palm Springs City Council voted to extend the city redevelopment agency's ability to use eminent domain another 12 years Wednesday night.

The council, by an unusual 3-0-2 vote, approved an amendment to city redevelopment plans that govern the city's 10 project areas totaling more than 3,000 acres.

Council members Chris Mills and Jeanne Reller-Spurgin abstained.

The redevelopment amendment, among other things, will allow the community redevelopment agency to use eminent domain -- the right of government agencies to take private property for public use -- as a last resort to acquire commercial and other non-residential property in the city.

The agency cannot take homes under the amendment.

Fears of eminent-domain action and doubts about the city's intentions that rippled through the city's black community in recent weeks found voice again Wednesday.

"My family -- that's who I'm concerned about and that's who I'm speaking for," said Willie Holland, a minister in Desert Highlands who was a child when his family and hundreds of other blacks were evicted from downtown's Section 14. "Eminent domain is not a good

Like I said earlier, WH folks are getting really arrogant lately. Not sure who is driving that train but they need to remember who there friends are.....or they risk the fate of Bush 1.

It's not about us, but we are included. Need to straighten out. Neil, this is definitely something Barry Jackson needs to hear about.

Just wanted to let everyone know of a disturbing problem I just learned about at the White House. The Intergovernmental Affairs Office just received their ethics briefing, and when all was said and done, they concluded that they should NEVER call lobbyists anymore -- will call tribes directly -- and will NEVER have lobbyists sit in meetings, EVEN WHEN the client is meeting with the IGA office. Obviously, this is ridiculous. (P.S. The new guy doing tribes over in that office, Jim Kelly, arranged a meeting with Gov. Paisano of Sandia without telling me, but fortunately I was given a heads-up by someone else over there).

I'm having lunch w/ Kevin Ring tomorrow so you can give to him, but if you want to wait until December or January you can always just ship to my house. Whatever is easier.

Agh! Those were gone before the season started. Any other games of interest? Give me a list and we'll get it organized. Also, if you can stand it, the Caps.

I am having lunch with her on Friday. I believe she is going to reiterate interest in leaving -- and I know she is interested in coming here. I have told her before that I thought she would be a great lobbyist, but did not remotely come close to committing anything on our end. Thoughts? She knows alot of peeps in Administration, but won't have business.
